

INSURGENTS HAD GAME OF SEE-SAW

Amendments to Philippine Tariff Have Ups and Downs.

SENATE MAY DEFEAT BILL

Democratic Alliance a Thing of Air,
Republican Managers Use Napoleonic Tactics.

The Payne Philippine bill passed the House late yesterday afternoon by a vote of 258 to 71, the negative votes being furnished by the insurgent Republicans with only fourteen exceptions.

The insurgent-Democratic alliance proved but a rope of sand in the final pull. The Republican insurgents would not vote for Democratic amendments to the bill, and the Democrats would not vote against the bill itself because it was too long a step in the direction of tariff reduction.

An Impossible Alliance.
After all, it was an impossible alliance, as the series of votes proved, and as the House leaders had insisted from the start. The insurgent Republicans stood for the preservation of the policy of protection in the broadest way; the Democrats for opposition to that policy.

The Democrats were for the bill, but wanted more of it; they would have wiped out half the sugar differential if they could have had their way, while the sugar differential was absolutely essential to the ultra-protection theory of the best-sugar Republican. So, when the amendments were taken up looking to free trade, the insurgents voted with the regular Republicans; and when the bill itself came up, most of the Democrats joined the Administration Republicans.

Napoleon never succeeded better with his tactics of dividing the enemy and defeating them in detail; Napoleon never knew the art of using one-half the enemy to help him defeat the other half.

Just that was what the Republican managers did yesterday. They accomplished it simply because the Democrats and their best-sugar allies were unnatural allies; they didn't talk the same language; they were not animated by any community of purpose, and they failed.

First Triumph.
As passed, the bill represents the first triumph of Administration policy this session. It has to run the gamut of the Senate, and there is grave doubt whether it will get through alive, for the impression is growing daily that the Senate is being organized to defeat the Administration on every essential policy, and this measure is one of the points of attack especially aimed at.

The measure provides for admission of Philippine tobacco, sugar, and rice at 25 per cent of duty; rice, at 25 per cent; Philippine products free, and for the free admission of tobacco, sugar, and rice after April, 1907—that is, for absolute free trade.

Free Trade Defeated.

The Democratic substitute provided for absolute free trade, and was defeated—231 to 176. The insurgents had had great hopes of their proposal to limit to 25 per cent the annual sugar importation to this country, but on this they were deserted by the Democrats, and mustered only sixty-six votes.

Three Republicans were elected by the Democrats when they stood up to vote with the latter for the McCall amendment declaring it the ultimate policy of this country to make the islands free. Two of the three were McCall and Rockwood (Iowa), and the third, the third, Fordney, of Michigan. With the Democrats, a total of 123 were mustered for this, against 108 votes.

Then William A. Smith proposed to make the duty 60 instead of 25 per cent, and there the Democrats slipped off, leaving the insurgent practically alone. They mustered seventy-three votes for the proposal.

See-Saw Again.

Next move in the game of see-saw was free by the Democrats, to grant immediate free trade with the islands. This found the Democrats standing alone, and the insurgents chiefly voting with the regulars. Result, defeat by 68 to 267.

The same condition defeated Champ Clark's amendment to strike off half the differential on refined sugar. Clark mustered 130 votes for the proposal, but the Republicans were substantially solid in opposition, and defeated him by an even 100.

How impossible was the affiliation of ultra-high tariff Republicans with Democrats was especially made plain when the proposal for striking off half the differential came up. The sacred differential in favor of raw sugar, whose existence means life to the sugar trust, was sustained by the united action of regular and insurgent Republicans.

The Sugar trust has been exasperated time and again from the beginning of this long debate; everybody has been against it; its power and its extortions have been deplored yet when the time came to strike a blow at it, the result was the same as always. The trust won, as it won in the making of the last Democratic tariff, as it won in the making of the last Republican tariff, as it always wins.

Sugar Trust Wins.

The Sugar trust is the most hated trust that ever gets discussed before Congress—until it comes time to vote. Then the thing that gives it life and opportunity to continue the career so uniformly fulminated against at other times, is always sustained. And it was so once more yesterday.

But it was a fine fight that Clark and Williams made for the proposition to reduce the differential. Chairman Olmsted, or the House was working in committee of the whole—ruled it not germane, and appeal was taken.

The Democrats pointed out that the highest possible authority held it was germane; for the House itself overruled the very same holding when the Cuban reciprocity bill was under discussion, and held that an amendment to remove the differential from refined sugar was germane. The changes were rung again and again on this precedent, set by a Republican House. But the chair was sustained, the entire voting Republican strength standing for him.

Vote 258 to 71.

It was late when the work of the committee was completed and the House resumed charge of the measure. The bill passed by the vote of 258 to 71. Those who opposed it were:

HALLS OF ANCIENTS TO BE SURRENDERED

Public Is Invited to Visit Institution
Before it Passes Over to Purchasers.

After a hearing before Justice Anderson, Franklin Webster Smith, curator of the Halls of the Ancients, agreed to give possession of the halls on February 8, to Stone & Fairfax, the local real estate dealers who purchased the property on November 16, 1905, for $1,000.

This finally decides this case and the projected removal of the thousands of art curios, paintings, and statuary will involve an immense amount of labor. The final destination of the contents of the halls is not yet decided, although Mr. Smith will appeal to Congress to have the exhibits incorporated permanently in the new National Museum, to be under the supervision of the Smithsonian Institution.

He is eager to have all Washington visit the Halls of the Ancients gratis from tomorrow, at 10 a. m., until the following Thursday, one week. He is anxious that everyone possible may have remembrance of the halls anyway, although they no longer remain as one of the attractions of the National Capital.

At intervals, he will speak in the various halls, but especially in the Hall of the Great Hall of National Galleries of History and Art, 45 by 20, which has no counterpart in the world. It was to promote this design for national galleries that the Halls of the Ancients were built.

G. P. O. APPOINTMENTS SUSTAINED BY RECORDS

The records of the Civil Service Commission do not show that any employee in the Government Printing Office has been appointed in that office in violation of the civil service law.

The request made a few days ago by the Public Printer, asking the Civil Service Commissioners to investigate and let him know if any appointments had been made in the printing office contrary to the civil service, has been received by the commission, and the records are now being examined. The only question involved is the classification of positions known as classified laborers.

There are some laborers in the printing office who claim that they should be classified as the order of about a year ago classifying laborers included them, but it seems some of them were not included.

The Civil Service Commissioners, it is said, will make no report on the subject, but simply inform the Public Printer to the status of the unclassified laborers.

STRIKE SITUATION REMAINS UNCHANGED

Roll call at strike headquarters this morning showed that of the 125 journey-men printers among the 130 people actually affected by the open shop declaration of the Typothetae, nearly half are again working.

At the strike headquarters a meeting is held daily at 1 o'clock at which the situation is thoroughly discussed. Secretary Hill states that no change is in view from the standpoint of the employers.

WANTS C. H. SMITH'S WILL PROBATED

Albert La Sturtevant, Mentioned as Executor, Wants to Be Released
From His Trust.

David W. Shelland, named as one of the executors of his will by the late Charles H. Smith, today filed a petition in the probate court asking that the will be admitted to probate. Mr. Shelland also asks that Mrs. Malvina W. Smith, the widow of the testator, and Martha Day, his half-sister, be required by the court to show cause, if they have any, why the document should not be admitted to probate as the last will of Charles H. Smith.

Accompanying the petition of Mr. Shelland is a statement made by Albert L. Sturtevant, who was also named by Mr. Smith as an executor of his will, renouncing and declining to accept the trust imposed.

Charles H. Smith, who was a clerk in the Treasury Department, died at his death January 5. He left a will dated January 23, 1905, by which, with the exception of bequests of $100 each to his half-sister and his nephew, Charles Day, he left all his estate to Mrs. Annie W. Hughes.

The value of the estate of Mr. Smith so far discovered is estimated to be $2,500. Attorneys Wilson and Barksdale are named as counsel for Mr. Shelland, the executor who filed the petition.

ENGINEER SUSPENDED OVER 500-FOOT SHAFT

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 17.—Suspended 500 feet in the air in a shaft at Phoenix Park colliery, with death threatening him from above and below, Engineer Thomas Canfield today had a thrilling experience which, although it lasted only a few moments, threatened to destroy his reason. While he was being lowered in a bucket a heavy cross-piece on the bucket caught on the ice and the bucket descended without it until it stuck.

The swinging of the ice for an instant would have brought the heavy cross-piece of Canfield from above, while he lay yawning the shaft, 500 feet of black abyss.

By tremendous efforts Canfield managed to signal his danger, and he was hoisted to safety just before the cross-piece fell.

WAS CHOKED TO DEATH AMUSING THE CHILDREN

Caught a Bit of Beefsteak Once Too Often While at Play.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Ernest Dozoi, a man of middle age, who had lived for twenty years at Mrs. Annie Bookers' boarding house in Brooklyn, started to play with her three children after dinner. He took a piece of beefsteak from the table and amused them by tossing it in the air and catching it between his teeth, growling while he did so. He did it many times and the children were greatly amused.

At last he began to laugh a good deal himself, and while he was laughing heartily he caught and bit the beefsteak again. It went into his throat and caught in his windpipe.

Dozoi stopped laughing suddenly, making motions with his hands and coughing hard. The children thinking this part of the game laughed all the more and ran to tell their mother.

The woman realized at once what was the matter and forced her fingers down the man's throat in an attempt to extricate the meat. She was not successful, however, and the dying man's jaws closed on her fingers, cutting them to the bone. Dozoi died and his jaws had to be pried open to release the woman's fingers, which were cauterized to prevent blood poisoning.

SLEEPING MOTHER SUFFOCATES CHILD

Such a deep sleeper is Jessie McDonald, colored, of 1425 1/2 Church street northwest, that she rolled over on her three-month-old, unnamed infant, some time last night and suffocated it without knowing that she had touched the child until she awoke this morning. Coroner Nevitt was informed and made an investigation. He gave a certificate of accidental death.

FIELD FUNERAL TRAIN STARTED

Remains Leave New York for Chicago.

PLANS NOT COMPLETED

Services, However, Will, Probably Be Held Tomorrow Evening at Ferry Street Residence.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A special train bearing the body of Marshall Field and the members of his family and friends who had watched beside his bed left the Grand Central station at 11 o'clock this morning.

The train was made up of two sleeping cars and a baggage car. There will be no attempt made to make a fast run and the train will probably reach Chicago shortly after noon tomorrow.

Taken From Hotel.

It was ten minutes after 10 o'clock this morning when the casket containing the body of the Chicago millionaire merchant was brought down from the seventh floor of the Holland House and borne out through the Thirtieth street entrance to a hearse in waiting there.

Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., Stanley Field, a nephew of the dead man and his wife; Dr. Frank Billings, Mr. Field's personal physician; William G. Beale, of Chicago, Mr. Field's personal counsel; Mrs. Beale, Robert T. Lincoln, law partner of Mr. Beale, Augustus N. Eddy, and other social and business friends of the family, left the Fifth Avenue entrance to the hotel at 10:30 o'clock and entering carriages were driven to the Grand Central station.

Arrangements Not Complete.

Mr. Eddy said that no arrangements for the funeral had as yet been made, but that the services would probably be held tomorrow evening at the Ferry street residence and that the interment would be on Friday morning in the mausoleum in the cemetery, where the body of Mr. Field's first wife and that of his son lie.

Marshall Field's Widow World's Richest Woman

The sickness and death of Marshall Field has brought into the limelight of publicity Mrs. Field, who it is said will inherit the bulk of her late husband's vast fortune, and who will therefore be one of the richest, if not the very richest woman in the world.

Mrs. Field is a native of Chicago. She has been married twice. Her first husband was Arthur J. Caton, the clubman and whip, of Chicago.

Before her marriage to Mr. Caton, she was Miss Della Spencer. Her father was a leading Chicago business man, and Caton home was the scene of the most costly entertainments ever seen in Chicago.

From Mr. Caton, the present Mrs. Field inherited an enormous fortune. With the vast fortune at her command, she is expected to continue on a large scale the charitable givings which have been one of her chief delights.

Mrs. Field is a former horse-woman, and it is her favorite form of diversion. The English painter, Philip Burne-Jones, once said that Mrs. Field had sweeter smile he had ever seen. She has no children.

HOMEOPATHIC HOSPITAL TO BE DEDICATED TODAY

Interesting Exercises Will Mark Opening of New Structure This Afternoon.

The new homeopathic hospital building which has recently been completed will be formally dedicated at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Ralph Jenkins, president of the board of trustees, will publicly turn the building over to the local authorities.

Special features have been arranged for this afternoon's program. There will be a series of musical numbers by the United States Marine Band. Dr. Jenkins, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, will deliver the opening prayer and address, and Dr. Ralph Jenkins will follow with an address for the board of trustees. The address for the hospital staff will be made by Dr. Thomas L. Macdonald. Mrs. A. H. Quail is chairman of the committee in charge of the exercises and will act as hostess, assisted by the lady managers, members of the North-Holt Guild and Ladies Aid Association of the hospital. The exercises will be held in the hall.

The building is a handsome addition to the old hospital and one of a series which the management contemplates erecting on the adjacent ground. It has cost $250,000, and is an imposing structure of Renaissance design. This will be the central office of the proposed group of buildings.

WHAT DO YOU CARE? YOU'VE GOT YOUR HEALTH

Great Natures Do Not Despair at Disappointment—They Look for Something Else to Do.

The broad-gauged man of today does not get blue just because things don't always come his way unless there is something the matter with him. If he "falls down" on one proposition he immediately looks up on another. He always looks forward and keeps on hustling. A man with his health and faculties has plenty of opportunities and the man who gives up or over-feels like it has a small nature or some physical weakness.

Dyspepsia certainly puts the best of men out of condition for work of any kind. You cannot blame the dyspeptic for getting blue. The very nature of his disease is most depressing and calculated to deprive him of ambition, energy and hope. There is hope for him, however, certain and sure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as the one cure that's safe and sure. Their unbounded popularity—evidenced by the fact that thousands of cures they have effected, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt their greatness as a cure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as the one cure that's safe and sure. Their unbounded popularity—evidenced by the fact that thousands of cures they have effected, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt their greatness as a cure.

In the very fact that they are Nature's own simple remedy. They do the exact work in exactly the same way that the digestive fluids of the stomach do because they are composed of exactly the same elements and possess the same properties. They relieve the weak and worn out stomach of its burden of digestion and permit it without effort to resume its normal growth and well. The stomach will get well quick enough in its own natural way if it is let alone. That's what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do. They not only let it alone themselves but make the food taken into the stomach do the same.

You can satisfy yourself of the truth of this statement by putting the food you would eat into a glass jar with sufficient water and one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The process of digestion will be taken up and carried out just as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids would do it. Their action is natural and they cause no disturbance in the digestive organs. In fact you forget you have a stomach which they begin to do their work, so mild and natural is the operation. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at
